With His Death This Community Loses A Highly-Esteemed Physician

Dr. William C. LeCompte died yesterday afternoon at his home on North Radcliffe street after an intermittent illness extending over a period of several months. With his death the community loses another well-known and highly esteemed physician and one who had practiced his profession here from 1901 until last October. During his residence here he was a useful and able-spirited citizen.

DR. WILLIAM C. LE COMPTE

Dr. LeCompte was one of six physicians who, having practiced medicine for 50 years, were honored at the annual meeting of the Second Council District of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania, at Allentown, June 4, last year. The six were presented with framed 50-year testimonials. Dr. LeCompte was born in Langhorne, January 18, 1875, and received his early education at public schools and a Friends school in Langhorne. He then entered West Chester State Normal School, from which he graduated. In 1897 he graduated with the degree of M. D. from the Medical-Chirurgical College, Philadelphia, where he later served his internship. At the conclusion of his internship Dr. LeCompte entered the medical corps of the U. S. regular army, during the Spanish-American War. Dr. LeCompte served as a captain and assistant surgeon of the U. S. Army Medical Corps during World War I. He entered with the rank of major, and served as commanding officer of base hospital No. 110, being overseas for six months. He retired with the rank of lieutenant colonel. For several years, Dr. LeCompte served as a member of Bristol borough school board, then as medical inspector of the public schools for a time. He was affiliated with the American Medical Association and the state and county medical organizations; also the Philadelphia Medical Club.

The physician was a member of Advocating that a policy of having each child attend kindergarten before beginning public school be adopted, Dr. J. Edward Smith, at a meeting of the Doylestown school board was authorized this week to expand this department of the Doylestown borough schools. Efforts will be made to locate the additional room (the present one is in the Presbyterian educational building) in Salem Reformed Church. The present total enrollment of the school is 1168.

The Southampton attorney told the audience that the League is a kind of taxpayers' association which interests itself in how the tax money is spent so that maximum benefits go to the taxpayers.

"The League is a non-political, non-partisan, non-profit research organization supported by the voluntary contributions of its members," the speaker pointed out.

"The League does not espouse or represent special interests, causes or attitudes, and has no affiliation with any other organization or group. Its sole objective is attainment of the greatest possible efficiency and economy in government."

"It is the largest statewide governmental research organization in the country. It is unique among organizations of its type in that it combines in one integrated operation work on problems of government at all levels throughout the state. ## MOTOR VIOLATION CASES HEARD BY 2 COUNTY JUDGES

Two Brothers Enter Guilty Pleas Before Judge Boyer

SENTENCE DEFERRED

One Defendant Had Accident and Then Drove Away

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 17—Charged with operating an automobile without the consent of the owner, William Schleight and his brother, Joseph, pleaded guilty before Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

William 18, and Joseph, 21, were arrested by Trooper Duane Allen, of the Langhorne sub-station of State Police, after they had over-turned an automobile belonging to their employer, Louis D'Alessandro, while Joseph Schleight was driving.

While interrogating Joseph Schleight, District Attorney Edward G. Biester remarked, "you have a strange idea of law enforcement when you do such a thing without knowing that you were disobeying the law."

Joseph informed the court that he realized the seriousness of the offense now but that his older brother, William, told him it would be alright to take the car if it was returned by 6 o'clock in the morning. A charge of larceny against William Schleight was withdrawn with the consent of the court.

Mrs. Margaret Welst, sister of the defendants testified that her brothers "got crazy" ideas when with a bunch of boys. This was in answer to Judge Boyer's question, "Do your brothers seem normal?"

Sentence will be deferred until later until Benjamin S. Calvert, Andalusia, another defendant in the same case can be heard.

Judge Boyer questioned the Schleight brothers on their drinking habits. They claimed they drank on occasions such as parties. The Judge wanted to know where minors such as they are obtained liquor. The defendants said they only drank at parties in their own home.

Described by District Attorney Edward G. Biester as "having been a pretty sound sleeper to have an accident, drive away from it and wake up a half-mile later," Abraham L. Detweiler, 37, 1317 West Broad street, Quakertown, who pleaded guilty before President Judge Hiram H. Keller to driving after his license was suspended, was warned about having any more

HISTORY REPEATS

In April, 1775, the British commander, General Gage, sent a force of 800 men with orders to destroy the American military stores at Concord and to arrest the rebels, Samuel Adams and John Hancock, at Lexington.

To circumvent the British, Paul Revere made his famous ride. Mounting a swift horse, Revere rode ahead of the enemy to Lexington, to warn the people the British were coming. The countryside was aroused and the British defeated.

Now, 173 years later, the Republic again is in danger, and there is need of a modern Paul Revere to sound the warning.

There have been numerous volunteers for the job, but none has succeeded in arousing the populace when he sounded the alarm against Communism. Instead a skeptical public—encouraged by many in high places—has discredited the efforts of these patriots.

Admittedly, the task has been more complicated than in Paul Revere's time. The peril is definite and immediate. The consequences of Washington's course in playing with Communist fire are upon us.

T-BARS AND DAYDREAMERS

You might be able to fool your psychiatrist and pull the wool over your friends' eyes, but your handwriting is a dead giveaway, grapho-analysts report.

First off, grapho-analysis is as different from the old pseudo science of character reading by handwriting as modern medicine is from the dark ages before Pasteur, analysts assert.

Take the "T" bar, in which grapho-analysts place a lot of stock. If you cross your "Ts" high—sometimes even over the "T"—you're a daydreamer. Long "T" bars, for example, show enthusiasm and sustained willpower.

Do you leave openings at the top of your "As" and "Os"? Then you're a person of free and easy expression. Close "As" and "Os" reveal a reticent personality. A long, wide downstroke on your "Gs," "Zs" and "Ys" indicate determination. A less favorable trait—temper—may be shown when the crossing misses the "T" and lands to the right.

Well, that seems to just about cover it. Except for the scrawl of the guy who cannot sign his name to one person in a hundred can read it. How are you going to analyze it?
